FOREWORD

This record is based in large part upon data collected by Rev. Harry H. Martindale over a period of about twenty-five years. His purpose was to write a detailed history of the family and of the communities in which considerable numbers of Martindales lived. He has written extensive portions of such a work. To put the data into standard genealogical form, facilitating ready reference and enabling others to extend the record thus begun seemed to be a worthy purpose and this is the only reason for the effort by the present editors. It does not preclude the completion of the original work as planned by Mr. Martindale. His patience and vast energy, shown in the work of collecting the data used herein, and his generosity in making them available for the present record are acknowledged with admiration and respect.

Thanks are due to several individuals who have contributed information regarding their more immediate families. Among these are Professor Harry C. Durbridge of Fresno, California; Mr. John Milton Platts of Fresno; and Mrs. Gladys E. Meier of Brownsville, Texas. It is desired also to record the help derived from the published material collected by Mr. William Clarence Hudson of Royal Oak, Michigan, on Lieut. James Martindell and his descendants, which material was carefully studied, used and referenced herein. Finally, this present work was first proposed and was encouraged throughout its progress by Mr. Clarence A. Torrey of Boston who helped, in addition, in solving several knotty problems associated therewith.

SCOPE OF THIS RECORD

This record is confined to the line headed by John Martindell, cordwainer, of Philadelphia. There are many places where it is incomplete and where uncertainties exist. Little effort has been made by the editors to extend the incomplete portions and only a few tangles have been unravelled. It was thought sufficient for a first effort to present the material, just as it is, for use and extension by those who may be further interested.

MARTINDALE FAMILIES IN AMERICA

The researches of Rev. Harry H. Martindale showed that several distinct and independent lines of Martindales exist today in America. In addition, there are many instances of individuals bearing the name coming to this country at various times and locating in diverse places, without known relation to the older families. The first of these distinct lines is that descended from Edward Martindale who was born in England in 1688, married Ruth Smead, and died in Westfield, Massachusetts, in 1762. Several distinguished names adorn the records of this line, among them those of Captain William Martindale of Tenon, Massachusetts; Colonel Stephen Martindale and his son Reverend Stephen Martindale; and Henry Clinton Martindale, a Massachusetts lawyer whose sons were Brigadier General John Henry Martindale, West Point class of 1835, and Colonel Edward Martindale, an attorney in Des Moines, Iowa. General Martindale resigned from the army after the Civil War and practiced law in Batavia, New York. Sarah Martindale, daughter of the original immigrant ancestor of this line, married 31 January 1751 Thomas Dewey at Westfield, Massachusetts. This ties the New England branch of the Martindale family rather remotely, but definitely, into the lines of Admiral George Dewey and New York's governor and presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey. Descendants of this line of Martindales are known to have resided in several of the northern states and in the far West.

Isaac Martindale, a member of the Provincial government in Rhode Island, married in 1699 Godsgift Arnold, a member of the family which later produced the Revolutionary traitor Benedict Arnold. Descendants of Isaac Martindale are found in New York and Michigan.

There are random contacts with evidence that a family of Martindales originated in Maryland but little work has been done on this line.

The line of John Martindell, cordwainer, of Philadelphia, with which this book is solely concerned, started in Philadelphia and in Bucks county, Pennsylvania. Some of the descendants migrated to South Carolina before the Revolution and others later moved westward into Ohio, Indiana and Iowa. Branches were founded in several southern states, notably Texas. Today the descendants of John Martindell are distributed throughout the country from coast to coast and from north to south. Many of the 215 individuals to whom are devoted separate paragraphs herein served in the Christian ministry, as is discussed below, but none more effectively than Elder Elijah, No. 112. One of his sons, Simon C. Martindale, No. 171, served as mayor of Anderson, Indiana. Another son, Judge Elijah B. Martindale, No. 170, served in public office and positions of high responsibility throughout his life. Six of the 215 individuals were state senators or legislators, county sheriffs or mayors of cities. Many of the men served with the Union armies in the Civil War, a few with the Confederate forces, but all, so far as recorded, had honorable records. Several were commissioned officers. Elizabeth Martindale, No. 106, did not live to see her seven sons serving in the Union army, one dying in battle. Dr. Joseph C. Martindale, No. 90, was a man of diverse gifts and interests. Besides his work as a physician, he wrote and published several books, including his History of Dyberry and Moreland, from which some of the material herein was drawn. John Franklin Martindale, No. 182, was known to an adoring public as a gifted tenor and the composer of several popular songs of the eighties and nineties. Martin Martindale, No. 150, married a first cousin, once removed, of Herbert Hoover. Harry C. Burbridge, No. 206, for many years has been professor of Physics at Fresno State College. Certain characteristic traits running through the family are discussed below. Altogether, it is a line of which all those within it may justifiably be proud.

RELIGIOUS AFFILIATIONS OF THE MARTINDALES

The early Martindales of the Philadelphia and of the New England lines were all Quakers. The name occurs many times in the records of early meetings in and around Philadelphia. However, when Thomas and Alexander Campbell, father and son, began their work of organizing a new denomination in this country about 1826, with conspicuous success throughout the newly settled territories of the Middle West, the Martindales became members of the New Light Christian Congregation, or the Campbellites, as they were called. From this beginning was rapidly developed the Christian Church, or the Brotherhood of the Disciples of Christ, or just the Disciples Church, as the organization was variously known. Practically all the Martindales who served in the ministry were in this church denomination. Without means of making a numerical comparison, it appears that the record herein shows an unusual number of men in one family serving as ministers of the church.

MARTINDALES AND MUSIC

The second trait which is conspicuous in this family record is musical interest and ability. Frank Howard (John Martindale, No. 182), the famous concert singer and composer of ballads, was not a sudden and isolated case. His ancestors had been singers and musicians for generations. There are undoubtedly many instances of musical talent not recorded, but the number known is certainly impressive. As in the case of those individuals serving in the ministry, there is nothing with which to make comparison in trying to decide whether the musical record of the Martindales is truly unusual. It remains a matter of opinion, but the opinion of the editors is that the numbers of those gifted with musical ability is markedly unusual in this record, particularly among the descendants of John Martindale, No. 68, and Mary (Burns) Martindale. Thus, Sarah (Martindale) Overrocker, No. 118, and her son Elijah; Lavina (Martindale) Crocker, No. 119, and her son John; Jennie (Burbridge) Gibson, No. 205, and her brother Harry C. Burbridge, No. 206; and the two sons, Hugh and John, of John Franklin Martindale (Frank Howard), Nos. 207 and 208; are all descendants of John Martindale and Mary Burns and all are known to have been endowed with unusual musical ability.

OTHER FAMILY CHARACTERISTICS

No one can examine this record even casually without realizing that the early Martindales were among those hardy pioneers who built this country in its beginnings. Large numbers moved from South Carolina into Ohio, Indiana and Iowa, traveling with the most primitive arrangements. They built and occupied log cabins, they cleared the forest and plowed virgin soil. They founded churches and schools and left their marks on many communities that evolved from the efforts of their own people and others like them. So, today it is possible to say that whatever Americans attribute to the pioneers who changed our Middle West from forest primeval to thriving towns and countrysides must be shared by our Martindale ancestors.

The following testimony on the subject of Martindale family characteristics was extracted from an address delivered at one of the Indiana Martindale reunions about 1925 by Dr. Horace C. Martindale, a great-grandson of Elder Elijah Martindale:

"We may point with a great deal of pride to some traits of the Martindale family. As an instance I would mention the optimism. Almost without exception, they see the bright side of any situation; optimism and a good disposition go hand-in-hand. I never yet have seen a Martindale grouch. Along with this trait is that of forward looking. It certainly took an optimist and a forward-looking man to develop the Martindale Mercantile Agency as James B. did, and the same was true of Elijah B., commonly known as Judge Martindale, of Indianapolis. It was the latter who as long as fifty years ago saw Indianapolis as it is today. The present plans for that beautiful plaza, which will include the Federal Building and World War Memorial, are possible because Judge Martindale was forward-looking. Another trait which is very characteristic is that of executive ability. I believe if a Martindale were to fall from a balloon onto an island of which he knew neither the people nor the language, you would, ten years later, find him ruling, or at least trying to rule, the entire island.

"Since I am mentioning faults I will mention another. It is synonymous with self-esteem, self-appreciation, self-reliance. We no doubt prefer the appellations just mentioned but I call it egotism. I have met most of the Martindales by name and have yet to be introduced to one that sat up at night to hate himself. As a rule, any member of this family is perfectly willing to exchange opinions with anyone, at any time, at any place, and upon any subject you choose to select. I have a feeling that if the good Lord himself should ever have any doubt in His mind as to the proper way in which to run this world, all He would have to do would be to let it be known and He will find a man who can tell Him exactly what to do and that man's name will be Martindale. But withal, it is a trait that, properly controlled, is not without merit. Who, may I ask, wants to deal with a weak-kneed, thin-skinned, spineless individual? Give me a man. It is far easier to break down egotism than to put in a new backbone.

"Many of our number have held high office, many have been placed in positions of public trust and not once has that trust been betrayed. Never, to my knowledge, has anyone bearing our name been guilty of a grave offense. When you consider that our history covers almost two hundred years, why should we not be proud of that record?"

"MARTINDALE" ON THE MAP OF THE UNITED STATES

Between the stations of Green's Fork and Hagerstown on the Pennsylvania Railroad in Wayne county, Indiana, the trains cross a small river known as Martindale Creek, a tributary of the Whitewater. This was named by John Martindale, No. 68 herein. There is a station on the Harlem Division of the New York Central Railroad in New York named Martindale and another in Caldwell county, Texas. Both of these were founded, according to one record, by descendants of another line than the one dealt with in this book. Villages of the same name are to be found also in Kentucky and Pennsylvania.

JOHN MARTINDELL, CORDWAINER, OF PHILADELPHIA

AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS

* * * * *

1 JOHN¹MARTINDELL, b. 24 Oct. 1676 in England; came to America in 1684; settled in Newtown, Bucks county, Pa., before 1700; m. in 1705 Mary Bridgman, daughter of Walter and Blanche (Constable) Bridgman who were m. 26 June 1686 (OS) at Tiddletown, Bucks county, having come to America on the same ship in 1682, Blanche in company of her brother Thomas Constable. The Constables were from Cornwall, England. Mary Bridgman was b. 1687. John Martindell was a cordwainer (shoemaker) and the family lived in Philadelphia. Mary inherited land in Bucks county originally entered by her father. (See patent from William Penn to John and Mary Martindell, Patent Book A, vol. iv, p. 142, Dept. of Internal Affairs of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, Pa.) She d. 7 Dec. 1726. John Martindell d. 5 Oct. 1750. They were members of the Society of Friends. Mary Bridgman's bible, presented in her 18th year, is in the library of the Bucks County Historical Society, Doyleston, Pa., and contains some records of her children. Other information for the following list was taken from Reference 1.

Children:

William, b. 2 Oct. 1707; d. 19 Oct. 1707.

Thomas, b. 24 Sept. 1708.

Ann, b. 16 Nov. 1709; d. 10 June 1714.

Mary b. 22 Dec. 1711.

Alabrethe, b. 6 July 1715.

2 John, b. 22 June 1719.

3 William, b. 30 Aug. 1723.

Records of the Philadelphia Monthly Meeting (Society of Friends) contain dates of deaths of children of John and Mary Martindell of which only one, Ann, can be identified with names in the list above. Other names in these records are William, Hannah and Elizabeth, dying in 1706, 1718 and 1716 respectively. These records are found on pp. 289, 299, 429, 435 and 436.

Regarding the inclusion of the second William in the list of children of John and Mary Martindell, Rev. Harry H. Martindale wrote: "I have found very few documentary records of William Martindale, son of John Martindell, cordwainer, of Philadelphia. Elder Elijah Martindale must have known him personally as he lived in the same locality in South Carolina as a boy and was about 15 years of age when William Martindale died in 1808. Elder Elijah states that William was born in Philadelphia and the bible record of Mary Bridgman Martindell indicates that she and her husband, John Martindell, had a son who was born 30 Aug. 1723. That was three years before Mary's death. I cannot claim as a certainty that this child was William Martindale, recorded as No. 3 in this record, but it is a very likely supposition. Dr. Joseph C. Martindale refers in his History of Byberry and Moreland Townships to such a son having gone to South Carolina."

It seems to have been a fairly common practice 200 years ago, when a child died in infancy, to give his name to another child born afterward. See the case of the two sons, both named George, of Thomas Martindale, No. 19, herein.

There is no proof for the statement made by some later members of the family that William Martindale was born in England.

15 JAMES³ MARTINDALE (William² John¹), b. 1751 or 1754 in Bucks county, Pa. Taken to Union county, S. C., by his parents in his childhood; he married there and served in the Revolution with the S. C. militia; m. about 1772 Elizabeth(?) Bishop. The war came to S. C. with the fall of Charleston in the Spring of 1780 and it was early in that year that James Martindale enlisted as a private in Captain William Young's company of Colonel Thomas Brandon's regiment. The unit participated in guerilla warfare and in several specific actions, including the battle of King's Mountain and the Siege of Ninety-Six. After about a year's service in the ranks he was elected first lieutenant and served two years longer in that grade. A tradition carried down through descendants suggests that his family did not hear from him throughout the war, nor afterward, that his wife died in his absence and that his children grew up without knowing whether he was alive or dead. However, there are other indications that he returned to his family and lived with them for at least two years, until his wife died in North Carolina where they had recently moved. In any event, he m. (2) Margaret Alexander (also called Julia), probably in 1787. She is said to have come with her parents from Ireland about 1775. In 1809 they moved to Gallia county, Ohio, and settled in Addison township. Their home is said to have been on Champaigne Creek near the present village of Addison on Route 7. They helped to organize the first Methodist church in the township. He was active in the community and served for a time as justice of the peace. His wife died sometime after 1830. James Martindell filed application for a pension in the Court of Common Pleas of Gallia county, in accordance with the Pension Act of 1830. This was eventually granted at the rate of $320 per year. In making out his application papers he needed the help of his brother William and traveled to the latter's home in Warren county, where he met his eldest son Samuel after a separation of more than 50 years during which Samuel had supposed his father to be dead. The story of the reunion may have been elaborated through the years. James is said to have stayed for some time and it is related that on one occasion he, his son Samuel, his grandson and his great-grandson all cradled wheat together in the same field. He m. (3) Mary Gilmour of H. C., in spite of considerable opposition from his family, on 31 Jan. 1839. James Martindell is said to have been tall and very erect and a man of soldierly bearing. He d. 7 July 1840 and is buried in the Olney churchyard near Addison, Gallia county, Ohio. His wife d. 1844. (For an extended account of James Martindale see Ref. 2, March-April, 1946, and Sept.-Oct., 1947. Articles in subsequent issues cover many of his descendants, in many instances more fully than in this record.)

Children of first marriage:

- 56 Samuel, b. 23 Feb. 1773.
- 57 Martha (Lattie or Lollie), b. 5 Feb. 1780.
- 58 Thomas, b. 17 Feb. 1782.

Children of second marriage:

- 59 John, b. about 1786 or 1787.
- 60 Druzilla (or Josie), b. 1788.
- 61 Tabitha, b. 1790.
- 62 Joseph, b. 11 Jan. 1796.
- 63 David, b. 26 July 1798.

- 65 Moses, b. 9 Oct. 1802.
- 66 Andrew S., b. about 1806.
- 67 James Alexander, b. about 1809.

16 WILLIAM³ MARTINDALE (William² John¹), b. 8 March 1753 in Bucks county, Pa.; was taken with his father's family to Union county, S. C. Married Martha Bishop about 1771. She was a daughter of Thomas and Mary Bishop and a sister of the wife of his brother James. William and his family were one unit in a group which migrated from the region of Union, Laurens and Spartanburg counties in S. C. in 1802 to what is now Warren county, Ohio. William Martindale owned many slaves in S. C. but freed them all. His decision to move to the Northwest Territory is said to have been based at least in part upon his aversion to slavery. Between 1811 and 1817 most of his family moved to the vicinity of Waynesville, Wayne county, Ind. He received a land patent dated 30 April 1813 for Section 32 of township 4, in range 5 between the Great Miami river and the Virginia Reservation. William Martindale served in the S. C. militia in the Revolution in the same company with his brother James, under Colonel Brandon. His Waynesville homestead was in what is now the northeastern part of Warren county, one mile south of the Warren-Greene county line. He moved to Miami county, ~~Ohio~~, Ind., about 1835-37. He d. at the residence of his son Moses near Chili, Miami county, Ind., 24 Jan. 1854, over 100 years of age. He was buried in the Old Pioneer cemetery at Chili, Ind. He was affectionately known as Old Uncle Billy.

20 MARTIN³ MARTINDALE (William² John¹), b. in S. C. 27 Dec. 1791 and emigrated to Ohio in his youth; m. Elizabeth Pearson in ~~Ind.~~ 27 Dec. 1810. She was b. in S. C. 19 Dec. 1782, a daughter of John and Barbara (Cain) Pearson. (Circumstances indicate that she was of the same family as Margaret Pearson who m. Robert Burns. See No. 68.) They lived first on the Little Miami in Ohio, then moved across to Ind., settling on Martindale Creek, near New Castle. There he worked at the trade of wheelwright, making wheels for spinning flax and wool. In 1814 or 1815 he acquired 160 acres about two miles east of Greens Fork and they lived there for a while. In 1823 they moved to Wayne twp., Marion county, Ind., where he had purchased 355 acres, about five miles northwest of the present city of Indianapolis, later adding another 80. The log house he built upon this tract and in which they lived stood until 1926. He operated a combination sawmill and grist mill on Eagle Creek near their log home. He served two terms as justice of the peace in Wayne twp. He d. 12 Oct. 1843. His wife d. 15 Nov. 1876. Both are buried, together with seven of their children, in Old Union churchyard, two miles southeast of Clermont, Marion county, Ind., near their home. (Refs. 4, 5.) (H. H. H. believes that birth dates of Martin Martindale and his wife, stated above as shown upon their tombstones, are in error by a year or two. One record was found indicating that Martin Martindale was b. 7 Jan. 1788.)

Children:

74 Charlotte, b. 14 Nov. 1811.

NOTES ON THE BURNS AND PEARSON FAMILIES

There is much genealogical material available on the Burns and Pearson families. Melissa (Roe) Clute, youngest child of Mary (Martindale) Roe, No. 115 of this record, recounted throughout her later lifetime her recollections of her mother's statements about relationship between her Burns ancestors and Robert Burns, the Scottish poet. Mrs. Clute's recollections were recorded in several letters written by her cousin, Mrs. Lattie (Roe) Glover of Buchanan, Mich. Mrs. Clute herself wrote in her 84th year to Rev. Harry H. Martindale: "Grandfather married Mary Burns, an own cousin to the poet. Her father's name was Robert, and the poet was named for him. Robert, Jr., was William Burns' son, a brother of her father. I have a sugar bowl that belonged to my grandmother. Mother said Robert ate sugar out of it when he came to visit grandmother." Rev. William M. Roe, first cousin of Melissa Clute, wrote in his autobiographical "Sketch", published in 1914, "(Mary Burns') grandfather, Robert Burns, was born in South Carolina about 1748; and his father, Lawrence Burns, emigrated from Ireland to South Carolina in 1736. Lawrence Burns was of Scotch descent and it is believed he was a kinsman of Robert Burns, the distinguished poet."

The records, however, provide no ground for supposing there was any such relationship. A search has been made in the New York Public Library with results as follows: Robert Burns, the poet, was a son of William Burnes whose father's name was also Robert. William's next older brother was likewise named Robert. The poet's father was born in 1721, his uncle Robert in 1719. The poet was born in 1759. None of these individuals bearing the name of Robert Burns ever left Britain. The search failed to disclose any individual named Lawrence Burns related in any degree to Robert Burns, the poet. Among the books examined were biographies by Allan Cunningham and by Dr. Currie and the biography and the genealogical record by Rev. Charles Rogers.

Lawrence Burns came to America via Ireland about 1736, settling in South Carolina. His wife was said to be Irish. Their son Robert was born in S. C. about 1748. He married Margaret Pearson (see below). Robert Burns was distinguished for his love of music and he was a skilful performer on the violin but gave up this pleasure when he became a strict Baptist. He took no part in the Revolution, but remained a Tory in principle. He d. in Wayne county, Ind., 1826. Children of Robert and Margaret (Pearson) Burns:

- Jeremiah, a Baptist preacher.
- Thomas.
- James.
- Robert, a Methodist preacher.
- Tabitha, m. Jesse Jones.
- Mary, m. John Martindale, No. 68 herein.
- Rachel, m. Jonathan Campbell.
- Margaret, m. John Pearson.

Enoch Pearson was descended from Edward Pearson of Parnall Fee, Cheshire, England. He was born 22 Jan. 174-, a son of Joseph and Elizabeth Pearson. He married Tabitha Jecock (or Jaycox). After his death she married (2) as his second wife John Townsend in 1799 or 1800. John Townsend's first wife was Elizabeth, sister of Enoch Pearson. Enoch Pearson, his wife and children, and possibly others with them, went to S.C. from the vicinity of Philadelphia in 1774. Children of Enoch Pearson:

Enoch.
Rachel, m. ----- Roberts.
-----, m. Joseph Prather.

There is much Pearson material in the minute books of various meetings (Friends) in the library of the Pennsylvania Genealogical Society (Gilbert Cope's copy). Pearson names occur in minutes of the Hopewell, Goschen and Buckingham meetings. On page 331 of The Annals of Howberry, Part Second, 1892, is an account of Thomas Pearson who was b. 1728 and d. after 1820.

109 ALVIN R.⁵ MARTINDALE (John⁴ James³ William² John¹), b. 16 Jan. 1814 in Gallia county, Ohio; m. in Huntington twp., 12 April 1838, Julia Ann Howell, b. in Jackson county, Ohio; 5 Nov. 1819, daughter of Levi and Janet (Ewing) Howell. He was a farmer, merchant, carpenter and builder, excelling in the construction of the fine Victorian stairways then used in the better homes. During the Civil War he kept a general store in Ewington. When Morgan's Confederate raiders passed through Ewington, one of them, weak and ill from typhoid fever, stopped at the store and besought help. Although Alvin Martindale's loyalty to the Union was above question and two of his sons were then serving in the Union armies (the third enlisted later), he took in the ailing man, recognizing him as a brother Mason, and his wife nursed him. This angered a couple neighbors who, however, were known to have hired substitutes for the army. They came while Alvin, a man of great size and strength, was away and demanded of his wife that she give up "that Rob". Julia bade the callers go and catch a rebel themselves if they wanted one and told them they would have to go over her dead body to get this one. Alvin Martindale served at various times as town constable, clerk, assessor, justice of the peace and trustee. He d. ———. His wife d. 16 June 1896. (Ref. 2, Sept.-Oct. 1943.)

All Martindale first names are indexed. Names of Martindale wives are indexed under "Martindale" as well as under their own maiden names. All family names are indexed but not all first names of families other than Martindale. The first names of one or two individuals closest to the Martindale line may be mentioned; if there are additional first names of that family in the text, the abbreviation "et al." is added to the index listing, meaning "also others". In such case the text of the paragraph indicated should be examined for other first names. An underlined number indicates a paragraph the principal subject of which is the name indexed.
